The HR,
37signals

Dear Hiring Manager at 37signals,

I hope this letter finds you well. My name is Ahmed Ibn Ahmed. I am a final-year petroleum engineering student at the University of Energy and Natural Resources. I am writing to express my interest in the summer internship program at 37signals, as a web developer.

I discovered my passion for programming after taking a python class as part of my university semester program. Since then, I have been learning and exploring the world of web development. I am excited to pursue a career in this field. I started my journey with HTML, CSS, and JavaScript and then moved to the backend where I started working with PHP. Although I enjoyed the object-oriented approach in PHP, I wanted to learn a framework that would make coding simpler and more fun. That's when I found Ruby on Rails and I have been amazed by it ever since. It took me two months to create my first major CRUD application in PHP using OOP, but with Rails, it was a simple scaffold generator.

I was elated to learn about 37signals and your commitment to providing equal opportunities to junior developers like myself, especially those from Africa.

I am confident in my hardworking and quick-studying skills and I know that if given the opportunity, I will do my best to complete tasks assigned to me. I understand that I don't know everything, but I am willing to learn and make an impact.

In conclusion, I am eager to join 37signals and be a part of your team as a web development intern. I am confident that I have the skills and motivation necessary to succeed in this role and I look forward to the opportunity to work with and learn from the experienced developers at 37signals.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss my qualifications further.

Regards,

Ahmed Ibn Ahmed
